THE INTELLIGENCER.

WHEELING, SEPTEMBER 13, 1899.

Harbingers of Victory.

There are three or four features in connection with the Republican convention at Martin's Ferry to choose a successor to the late Representative Danford. Each and every one gives augury of success in November, in spite of the new issues added to the Chicago platform forced by the Democracy at the dictation of John R. McLean.

In the first place, is the number of energetic candidates, all of whom are earnestly in the field for a contest for the honor to a finish. Second, is the large attendance of enthusiastic delegates and the friends and workers of the various candidates, loyal to the several aspirants. Third, is the intense interest and the prolonged contest that is likely to occur before a choice is reached, all participants inspired by a desire to secure the strongest possible candidate.

The logic of this situation is that the Republicans of the district are confident beyond doubt that there will be a big Republican endorsement of the national administration and its policies, regardless of the appeals to prejudice to be made by the Democrats and their championship of the cause of Aguinaldo and his followers.

If this feeling is kept up there will be no doubt as to the success of the late congressman, or how the Republicans of Ohio will stand on the vital questions of upholding the hands of Ohio's favorite son, in the mighty responsibilities forced upon him in a great crisis. The best evidence of the earnestness, the confidence of winning and the purpose and loyalty is the closeness of the contest made for the honor.

Cornelius Vanderbilt's Death.

The business world was startled yesterday by the announcement of the death of Cornelius Vanderbilt, who was the head of the family whose wealth is estimated at $100,000,000. While he has been ill for some time, his death was somewhat sudden. Cornelius Vanderbilt was the grandson of the Commodore, the founder of the great Vanderbilt house, and, until recently, headed the directory of several great railroads. His fortune consisted of the control of the New York Central road, the Chicago & Northwestern, the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern, Lake Erie & Western, Chicago & St. Louis, the Wagner Palace Car Company, and United States bonds to the amount of about $40,000,000.

Mr. Vanderbilt was a power in the financial world and railroad circles. Few living men possessed greater influence in these respects, and his departure removed one of the most active figures. As in the cases of all other men of his class, Death has conquered, and a vast fortune and many interests pass into other hands. The curtain falls on another act in the Vanderbilt history, only to rise after an interlude upon another, in which the Vanderbilt name will figure just as conspicuously.

A Revised Platform.

In view of the fact that the Democrats have taken the position that the Declaration of Independence is true, but it needs a new interpretation and a revision, with some important additions, some caustic comments are being indulged in by the press that favors sticking to the old document just as the fathers constructed it. One of these additions will be aimed at the trusts, but the most important one will be in the interest of the Filipino Insurrection against American authority. It will not count for anything with the Democratic convention if the United States is before next year in full possession of the islands, and peace and harmony prevails, for that is not a characteristic of the Democracy. The New York Sun suggests that if they had lived in the days of the flood they would have made a campaign issue of the necessity for increasing the navy. "Their business is in galloping on nightmares. The trust is one of these Democratic steeds, the Philippines is another."

Anti-imperialists will be appointed on the committee on resolutions, and they will present something like the following, according to the New York contemporary:

"Resolved, That the war carried on by President McKinley against the Philippines is a grossly immoral assault on American principles of government, and a cruel and brutal attempt to crush a weak people who are bravely contending for the exercise of their God-given right of self-government."

"Resolved, That we severely condemn the action of President McKinley in relation to the Philippines in conducting the most cowardly and unjustifiable war ever carried on in the history of republics."

Such an addition to the Chicago platform would enthrall the entire population of the United States, from head to foot, with patriotic regard for poor down-trodden Aguinaldo, and worthy indignation against the government and the Star Spangled Banner, not to say our soldiers, and the Republican party would be wiped from the face of the earth. The Sun suggests as the proper candidate for Vice President to be placed on this platform, as an associate of William Jennings Bryan or Edward Atkinson, would be Hon. John Jacob Lentz, of Ohio, the Hon. Patrick Henry Aguinaldo, of Luzon, being unfortunately ineligible. How that would stir up the loyalty of the whole Union!

To Boycott France.

Notwithstanding public opinion in France is becoming moderate, in view of the universal condemnation of the Dreyfus verdict, to the extent that mercy may yet be extended to the victim of the generals, and the President, it is intimated, may extend clemency in the shape of a pardon, the English and American press are advocating a boycott of the Paris exposition of next year, for the brutal verdict and the methods of the court which have disgusted the remainder of the civilized world.

France is not a real republic. There is no personal liberty there. It is a military dictatorship no more, no less. The court martial was composed of men who threw fairness and honesty to the winds. The deduction is made, in view of all the circumstances, that the court convicted itself and not Dreyfus. While all the world hoped that the court martial was to be a court of mercy and justice, it turned out not to be so. The court declared him again a traitor and convicted itself of perjury. Discussing these points, the New York Sun vigorously echoes the sentiment of the American people when it says:

Seriously, it seems to us that the civilized world is to some extent involved in this abominable affair—involved, we mean, by reason of our recognition and association with France—and it is a question in our mind whether we can, in justice to ourselves, hold more than the most distant and formal relations with a government and a people capable of sanctioning the unspeakable atrocity we are discussing.

Should French public sentiment, expressed in any authoritative way, approve the action and the methods of Joubert and his confederates at Rennes, every nation pretending to enlightenment, humanity and honor ought to ostracize France as being barbarous and accursed. There is no place in Christendom for such an unclean thing.

This is strong language, but there is a world of truth in it.

Aunt Patty Goodin.
Down in Hardin county, Kentucky, Aunt Patty Goodin, colored, has celebrated her 120th birthday. Her husband, long ago dead, was emancipated by his master in his will in 1830, sixty-nine years ago. His death was the act of a murderer. Aunt Patty has had six children, the youngest of which, if living, would be seventy-seven years old. She has a large number of grandchildren, great grandchildren, great-great grandchildren and great-great-great grandchildren in Kentucky and Indiana.

Aunt Patty is very black, and is yet able to walk about the house. She is now cutting new teeth, and is likely to live to possess another complete set. Aunt Patty remembers events that occurred over one hundred years ago. Aunt Patty is a good old woman, is religious, and maintains the respect of the whole community, white and black. The soil of the blue grass state is productive of many wonderful things of vegetable and animal life, as well as strange and peculiar types of politicians.

Esterhazy, while contending that Dreyfus, whose chief prosecutor and persecutor he was, was again guilty, urges that his victim should go free, on the ground that, having been sentenced to ten years' imprisonment, and having already suffered five years' solitary confinement, reduces his confinement one-half, which means that on Saturday he finished serving his term. He declares that the whole business is nothing but a farce, arranged in advance, and beyond all doubt in a short time it will be played to the end. This seems to show that Esterhazy is either conscience stricken, by reason of the part he played, or fears a re-action against himself, which might compel him to again retire from the country.

We commend to the attention of our friend, the Register, the following official dispatch received on Monday from Manila to the war department, with reference to the alleged interview with General Lawton, which it has referred to as authentic:

MANILA, Sept. 11.

Corbin, Washington:
Lawton pronounces utterly foundationless newspaper reports of interview asserting that he commented on military situation, or criticized conduct of operations before the Philippines, as false and untrue.

A RAKE OPPORTUNITY.

This is official, because it comes from General Schwan. It is also officially stated by General Corbin that the department has addressed no inquiry to General Lawton.

In Aguinaldo's anniversary speech he declared that "some of the states in the American Union have risen in our favor, especially the Democratic party." Aguinaldo was somewhat mixed in this allusion, or, more properly illusion. He was erroneous concerning any of the states uprising in his favor, but the Democratic party, says Colonel Henry Watterson, which has all it can do at present to rise in its own favor, has as yet done nothing to discourage this view of the Tagal chief.

Here is a pertinent point from the Washington Star: Captain Dreyfus disappears. France is now in the prisoner's dock. Will she purge herself of the general contempt? Or will she invite a sentence which for a nation will be as severe as that which in the case of an individual has been passed upon Captain Dreyfus?

The lack of a practical application for his warm sympathy for the Philippine rebels is noted in connection with the fact that Edward Atkinson has failed to at least send one of his patent ovens over to the Philippines, who are said to be suffering from want of provisions.

The Philadelphia Record is a Democratic paper. It says that every day makes it more evident that the Democratic party cannot be rallied in undivided support of the anti-expansion policy. The Record is a conservative and careful observer.

To-day the Civic Federation, the purpose of which is to discuss various public questions, including trusts, combinations and corporations, will open in Chicago. The large cities, and the states will be represented by delegates appointed by the governors, and among the speakers will be Governor G. W. Atkinson, of our own state.

The Washington Star sees the point in the whole business when it remarks that a large number of people who have been hanged would have been glad of a chance to avail themselves of the French army's discovery that such things as "extenuating circumstances" are possible in the case of a traitor.

THE WORLD'S REVERSAL.

Of the Judgment of the Court-martial at Rennes.

New York Press: As from Rennes proceeds to the world the verdict of condemnation of the accused, so from the world proceeds to Rennes the verdict of condemnation of his condemners. It is the first sitting of the court of international public opinion in full bench, under the modern conditions—the telegraph, the cheap press and the literate democracy—which allow the concentration of the vast conglomerate mind of mankind upon the evidence in the case at bar. There have been trials—notably those of Louis XVI and his queen—in which the world had all the breathless and horrified interest that has pertained to the Dreyfus trial. But the world, the intelligent world of those days, was a very small place, and, small as it was, news of what went on in foreign parts of it came to it only brokenly and slowly. Not until September 9, 1899, was there presented an occasion in which the whole of civilization might sit in judgment on a court's decision and announce its affirmation or reversal on the day of delivery.

Of all world sights of the time this instantaneous unanimity of universal disagreement with the verdict is the most impressive. Of all world sounds of the time this thundering chorus of condemnation of court, army and nation is the most overwhelming. The whole of humanity cries out at once. The German emperor, with his final emphatic protest of the prisoner's innocence, and the people of a remote Pennsylvania village, with their feverish demand for the intervention of Great Britain and the United States, are of one mind and of one infection, if not of one word. The blood of the Magyar is up in Budapest and of the gentian in Louisville. Wherever on this earth—including even a part of that Paris where, as the Temps coolly informs us, foreign countries are considered as "giving the matter far more importance than it deserves"—there is free thought and a free method of expression there is denunciation.

When a French court's verdict once before shocked the world, it was only the kings who mustered their armies to its reversal. Now it is the peoples who indignantly reject that judgment: it is the revolting soul and conscience of mankind. Not in arms will its decree of disavowal be executed. It will be in a withdrawal of fellowship, the more effective because unofficial and individual. Against this universal shrinking from contact with a polluted people, a nation sunk in that hopeless immorality which cannot recognize injustice, no Jemmapes nor Valmy can be gloriously won, no Waterloo can be honorably lost. The spiritual forces which set out to average the decapitation of justice in France are far mightier than the hosts of the flesh which marched to avenge the decapitation of royalty. They are the balliffs of the court of international public opinion, for the first time pronouncing unanimously and instantly its judgment of acquittal of the condemned, of conviction of the condemners. And their sentence, in the probable event of the Dreyfus judgment being enforced—is the relegation of France to the place where her example may no longer concern the world, where her barbarities arouse only the curious interest, the passing nausea, of the executions of reformers ordered by the Emperor. Dreyfus of China, or the punishment meted out to his enemies by some Guatemalan dictator.

Memories of Childhood.

These memories of our early days, by some mysterious force, transport us through a brightening haze to knowledges and meadows, banks and braes, To shady nooks and shining ways Where lives our childhood still.

Fair cottage home, with scanty space
Twixt many a sheltering tree,
Where first I saw a father's face,
First felt a mother's fond embrace,
My lingering love for thee.

I see, where morning mists retire,
The dewdrops on the corn,
The boortree and the bonnie brier,
The swallows nesting in the byre,
The skylark, throbbing with desire
To reach the gates of morn.

I hear the distant farmyard bell,
Sweet as cathedral chime,
But sweetest still the tones which tell
Of reverent household ordered well—
The birthplace of a sacred spell
Surviving earth and time.

No city glare, then all unknown
To fancy's early dream,
No scenes of manhood shrewdly grown
Save those vouchsafed to faith alone
Yond death's dividing stream.

And what though furrowed cheeks be wet
For your life's vanished days,
When hope and memory shall have met
Beyond the shadows of regret,
Who shall his infant joys forget
Among the themes of prose?

—Belfast Whig.

Discovery of Life Plant.

Science has discovered a plant so full of life that if one of its leaves be broken off and merely pinned to a warm wall another plant will grow from it. It is this same vitalizing principle which enable Hostetter's Stomach Bitters to arouse to life and duty the weak and worked stomach.

The sufferer from dyspepsia or any stomach trouble needs Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. See that a private revenue stamp covers the neck of the bottle.

A RAKE OPPORTUNITY.

To Secure a Complete Set of Encyclopedia Britannica.

Frank Stanton is offering the public a fine chance to secure the Encyclopedia Britannica, complete in thirty superb octavo volumes. This includes the recent supplement of five volumes of particular interest to Americans.

For a short time this standard work is offered at 20 per cent less than it was sold by a leading Chicago daily paper and on easier terms.

The Encyclopedia Britannica is on exhibition in Frank Stanton's store, and they will be glad to show it to any one. If you cannot come in person, write them, and they will be glad to send you by mail full particulars about the work and the great offer of the above enterprising firm.

They have only a limited number of sets, however, and are interested, you should investigate at once.

QUEER EXPERIENCE.

Of Kanawha Coroner—Corporal Walked out of his Jurisdiction.

Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer.
CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 12.—Coroner Beardsley, of this county, had a queer experience recently in connection with his duties. Last Saturday evening Frank Hill, who lives at Crescent, in Fayette county, started in hot haste for the depot at Handley to prevent his sister from carrying out a plan to elope. In his haste and excitement he ran into an iron bar on the Morris creek bridge. The shock knocked him off and he fell on some rocks in the creek bed below. A companion thought him dead and hurried on to Handley to head off the elopement and notify the authorities. He accomplished both and Coroner Montgomery, ascertaining that the accident had occurred in Kanawha county, notified Coroner Beardsley. The latter responded, but when he arrived at the bridge he found that the corpse had gotten up and walked over into Fayette county out of his jurisdiction. Hill had regained consciousness and walked back home. Another strange feature of the case is that on the day before Hill's brother, Eugene Hill, was shot and killed at Longacre.

Charleston Notes.

Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer.
CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 12.—A deed has been admitted to record in the office of the county clerk here, transferring from Mary A. Morrell, of Cincinnati, to John Loree, of Lincoln, Neb., 200,000 acres of lands lying on the waters of Davis and Cabin creeks, and Coal and Guyandotte rivers, in this county. The consideration is $1 and "valuable services rendered."

Orders have been issued restoring to active duty in the National Guard Assistant Surgeon Z. T. Kabaugh, who resigned to accept a lieutenant in the First West Virginia Volunteer regiment.

The governor's and the brigade staff of the National Guard will have to pay their own expenses to the Dewey reception in New York. The governor declines to use his contingent fund for the purpose.

Wages Advanced.

Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer.
PARSONS, W. Va., Sept. 12.—About six hundred of the hands of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, of Luke, have had their wages advanced 8 to 10 per cent. This includes all the employees except those receiving high salaries. The company is advertising for laborers at their new plant at Coryington.

Peremptory Sale Ordered.

Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer.
CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 12.—An order has been issued in the United States circuit court here in the case of the Atlantic Trust Company against the Maritime Coal Company, ordering a peremptory sale of the property, of which the Thacker Land Company is the landlord. The order was signed by Judge Nathan Goff at Clarksburg.

Refused an Office.

Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer.
PARSONS, W. Va., Sept. 12.—Howard Sutherland, of Elkins, has refused the offered appointment of census taker of Porto Rico for the war department. The office for subsistence and all pays about $24 a day. Mr. Sutherland is land agent for the Davis Coal and Coke Company and the West Virginia Central Railroad.

ABOUT LOCUSTS.

Interesting Investigations by United States Entomologists.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 12.—Every year since the invasion of certain western states, particularly Kansas and Colorado, by the Rocky Mountain locust or western grasshopper in the years 1874 and 1876, the division of entomology of the United States department of agriculture has sent an agent into the field in the western states each summer to study grasshopper conditions for the purpose of enabling the department to predict, if possible, a future invasion and to warn farmers well in advance. This annual trip for the present year has just been completed and the special agent, Mr. W. D. Hunter, has just reported to Dr. Howard, the entomologist of the department.

This year's investigations have been of special interest on account of a slight outbreak of the locust in North Dakota and on account of an unusual abundance of local non-migratory species in different western states. Moreover a rather large swarm was seen in flight in early August, the exact settling point of which it is now difficult to approximate. Earlier in the summer a statement was published in certain western newspapers to the effect that it was considered by entomologists that the Turtle mountain region in North Dakota and Montana probably was a permanent breeding ground of the destructive migratory grasshopper, a statement which occasioned much alarm and indignation on the part of railroads and other land owners in that part of the state. This region therefore, was carefully traversed and scrutinized by Mr. Hunter, who reports that the migratory grasshopper does not breed permanently in the Turtle mountains, nor in that immediate vicinity. The ground is perfectly unsuited to breeding and moreover swarms descending farther east have been traced from far to the north and west of that place. The probable breeding ground, he thinks, is upon the Assiniboine river north and east of Regina—a region which will be investigated next season.

Says he is a True American.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—A dispatch to the World from London says: An English newspaper having declared that Andrew Carnegie would stand for parliament for Southend-on-Sea, thus casting some doubt upon his American citizenship, the World correspondent telegraphed him, asking for an exact statement in regard to the matter. This was his reply:

"My father was naturalized in 1855 or 1856. This made me an American citizen, I being a minor. My naturalization was unnecessary, but as a matter of precaution I also took out naturalization papers in New York City years ago. I cannot give the exact dates. The papers are in my private safe in New York."

"ANDREW CARNEGIE."

Mr. Carnegie denied also that he had any intention of sitting in parliament, asserting that he was an American; did not intend to cast off his allegiance to his country, and would not enter public life at Washington where he might combat the attacks upon true Americanism in the Philippine policy of the administration.
